

SCENARIO:

Space Reserved explores the fragility of our lives: nobody really knows what lies around the corner. Sometimes the simplest whim or casual choice can plunge one into life-threatening peril.

A successful young man on a date makes a seemingly trivial, if inconsiderate decision that soon spirals into bizarre captivity. And his own character—impulsive, manipulative and overconfident—keeps getting him in deeper. Everything that always worked for him is suddenly useless or worse. His freedom and very survival now lie in the hands of three women with huge grudges, nothing to lose and a warped sense of justice. They see him only as a symbol of what the world has denied them.

As time passes, the line between reality and illusion blurs: Is the young man really a victim, or is he an isolated, morally bankrupt exploiter—just as his captors accuse? At their mercy, he is forced to confront hidden lies and truths about himself, even as a strange bond grows with the women on whom his survival now depends.

The script was optioned and cast, but the pandemic caused plans to fall through. I can send a detailed proposal and budget, a character breakdown, and storyboards.
